

Website Type & Purpose

My website I am going with a resume. I chose this because I've been very itemized and short term goaling in my focus on my future. While graduating college I have made that my number one priority and have not made as large of a focus on building experience. This will be a great way to pool what I have and give me a headstart as I move forward into the entry level workforce.

- Welcome Statement
 - Hello, my name is Karson Null, I am 23 years old and am nearly finished earning a bachelor's degree in Information Technology.
- Purpose and Goals
 - I'm finishing up a degree in IT and am looking for entry level positions to help in expanding my experience and finding my future direction in the field..
- Favorite Quote
 - "It's a dangerous business, going out your door." - Frodo, Lord of the Rings
 - I like this quote because it keeps in perspective that every day carries risk, even the most mundane of days. So you keep that in mind, be appreciative of what you have and what is given, and make sure your risks are ones worth taking.

About Page

- About Me
 - Hello! My name is Karson. I am an IT Major and this summer is my final term at Mizzou, as you can imagine I'm ready to wrap this up and get some sleep, haha. My main hobby is movies, I'm a big movie buff and I'm constantly watching and analyzing and have even dabbled in making some to a small degree in the past (My favorite film is Prisoners, and I'm currently watching all of the James Bond movies for the first time). Aside from that I also love video games and reading about history. I've taken web development classes at Mizzou before so I will presumably be right at home with this class. I'm not set on my long term goals moving forward, graduating has been the focus of all of my energy for so long that now that I'm at the end of the tunnel I'm now unsure of the exact direction to head next, finding that balance of success and personal fulfillment is important to me so I'm not rushing into something that I'm not confident in just yet.
- Education Overview
 - Associate's degree in Information Technology.
 - Currently finishing my last term in my bachelor's degree in Information Technology.

Experience

- Home Depot Sales Associate
 - June 2022 - Present
 - Sales Associate, I helped customers, filled orders, and stocked shelves.
 - As you can see I've worked there for over 4 years so it's the largest part of my work history. While I didn't take any higher positions due to not being able to commit while in school, I grew into a valued employee and was entrusted as an authority in my department. I learned how to stay focused and committed to good service under pressure and how to delegate and coordinate amongst groups of coworkers.

- IT Intern for Three Rivers College
 - February 2023 - May 2023
 - I assisted the Technology and Computer Services departments on the campus of Three Rivers College, helping address tickets and fixing day to day issues ranging from simple class problems such as projectors not working properly, and even larger projects such as running ethernet cables and setting up entire networks.
 - This is my first official position in the field of IT and taught me what is expected of me and what to focus on in my education.

- Three Rivers Event Staff
 - October 2021 - March 2023
 - Helped work events held by the college, mainly sports events. This involved cleanup and running media boards. This on its own was a relatively simple job but combining it with the beginning of my college experience it taught me how to manage time and juggling responsibilities evenly, while also just generally building my work ethic and ability to work with others.

Reflection

As I begin wrapping up my last term here at the University of Missouri I now am sitting at the crossroads of what decision I should make in continuing my career. I've admittedly been very tunnel visioned and have purely focused on graduating, especially with a very tough very cramped last couple of semesters. So the next step does feel a bit daunting, that's why I think this resume site project can potentially be very helpful.

The job that makes up the bulk of my work experience is being a Sales Associate at Home Depot. I've spent a significant amount of time working at Home Depot, even though it's not directly tied to my field, I grew a lot working in one place for so long. I never moved into a higher position due to my inability to commit while focusing on school, but I was able to become a trusted member of the team. I was entrusted with the training of new employees and left to run the department. So while my resume may initially look a little thin due to the small number of positions, I am a determined worker and hopefully I can make that shine through.

I did for a few months work as an IT intern at the college I previously attended, Three Rivers College. This is more directly tied to my field and I directly worked with the Technology and Computer Service departments on the campus and helped with general day to day tasks. While I wasn't there for the longest time, it proved that I am capable and competent in this field and that I have the knowledge to be successful in it.

Where I need to look next is gaining more relevant experience in the field of IT. As mentioned before I don't have an immediate next step planned out but taking a look at my work experience helps me reflect on what I'm good at, where I've been successful, and where I should look to improve. While it's not my favorite line of work, I've been very successful and appreciated in customer service and have a strength in working with other people.
